Missing Girls Found Safe
In Unoccupied ApartmentTwo Children
Locked Selves
In Bathroom

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—Two 7-year-old girls missing since Sunday night were found alive and hungry Tuesday by FBI agents in a vacant but air-conditioned apartment where they innocently imprisoned themselves just a few doors from home.

The youngsters — Rita Ohlgren and Maria Teresa Morley — were locked in a bathroom in the apartment while outside police, Marines and 50 FBI agents combed a 10-square mile area.

"We said our prayers to get out," dark-haired Rita said shortly after she and her friend were freed.

At 4:10 p.m., nearly 48 hours after the girls had disappeared while playing, two FBI agents entered the vacant apartment and found the bewildered and hungry children.

Rita Thanks Rescuers

When the agents opened the door to the apartment bathroom, Rita said "Thank you." One of the FBI men replied, "You're welcome."

All the while they were inside the bathroom yelling for help, the massive hunt had been underway. Even helicopters had been used to look for them, and Alexandria police had expressed fears that both might have been kidnapped and possibly killed. One police official had said "there is nothing more left to search."

The FBI entered the case Monday night on the theory that a kidnapping was involved. They mapped out the big search area and went to work checking each vacant house and apartment.

Slept In Bathroom

When reunited with their distraught parents, the girls' first words were "We're hungry."

Rita, the daughter of a Marine major, said they went into the vacant apartment because her friend Teresa had to use the bathroom. The door locked when Teresa closed it, the FBI said, because the lock was defective.

Despite the area's near 100 degree heat of the past two days, the girls did not suffer. The air conditioning was on even though the apartment was not occupied.

Rita told reporters that at night they slept in the bathtub. At other times they pounded on the bathroom door and shouted for help without success.

Torrid Wave
Sparks Storms

By United Press International

The mercury soared in much of the nation again Tuesday and sparked killing electrical and wind outbursts in the Midwest.

Lightning struck a house at Frankfort, Ind., Tuesday and two sleeping women occupants burned to death. The house burned to the ground.

Cleveland, Ohio, mopped up after the worst storm since 1953 ripped through the city with 110 mile per hour winds. Three men were killed and six were injured when the winds sent a 50,000 gallon water tank crashing through five floors of an aluminum manufacturing plant.

Violent thunderstorms also swept across Pennsylvania into New Jersey. Winds tore loose a hangar roof at Carlisle, Pa., airport and slammed it into another hangar.

5,000 Deformed Babies

AACHEN, Germany (AP)—Five thousand babies were born deformed in West Germany after their mothers took the sedative drug thalidomide. It was announced by a special institute set up to deal with victims of the drug.

Rusk Prods
Soviet Envoy
For MeetingSecretary Renews
Idea Of Conference
To Reduce Tension

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk called in Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin on short notice Tuesday to press urgently for a Berlin commandants' meeting. The aim is to cut down on dangerous incidents at the Berlin wall.

The State Department followed up by convening ambassadorial representatives of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany. This session was called to hear about the Rusk-Dobrynin talk and discuss the many possible ramifications of the Allied decision to give medical help to wounded East Berliners on the Communist side of the wall.

Countersteps Arranged

Sending an ambulance to aid injured would-be-escapees on the Communist side—as the Western commandants decided on Tuesday—would amount to the most "action" by the West inside East Berlin since the Reds set up the wall a year ago, and no one seemed sure just what the results would be.

U.S. officials said countersteps have been decided on should the Communists, for example, refuse to let the Western ambulance cross into East Berlin. But the officials declined, on security grounds, to spell out the proposed countermeasures.

The current wave of concern over the potentially war-provoking Berlin situation follows last Friday's death of an East Berlin youth. Mortally wounded by a Russian tank as he tried to escape to the West, the youth lay bleeding on the Communist side of the wall for more than an hour while U.S. forces on the other side made no move to assist him even though Western troops are supposed to have free movement throughout all Berlin.

Proposal Previously Rejected

Tensions have mounted rapidly since, with angry West Berliners condemning the U.S. occupation forces and stoning Soviet vehicles entering West Berlin.

State Department press officer Joseph W. Reap said that at a hurriedly called 20-minute session with Dobrynin, Rusk "underlined the need for the four commandants (U.S., British, French, Russian) to get together to find ways to reduce tensions" in Berlin.

Rusk's proposal was a reiteration of a Western suggestion that has been advanced since June 25 and rejected by the Russians so far. There was no indication from Dobrynin that Moscow was about to change its stand.

U.S. Will Boost
Rocket Outlay

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said Tuesday the United States plans to spend more money on huge booster rockets in an attempt to overcome Russia's "substantial" lead in some space developments.

Until these big rockets are available, McNamara told a news conference, the United States will not be able to match Soviet feats as sending two cosmonauts into lengthy orbital flights.

He said efforts will be made in the new military budget to be submitted to Congress next January to "overcome this deficiency" in American boosters. One great hope is the Titan III, the Defense Department Monday ordered work to start on it.

McNamara said the Titan III would have "between two and three times" closer to "three" the thrust that is generated by the Soviets' present big booster rocket.

Titan III will not be ready for "workhorse" space duty until 1964 or 1965.

Princess Margaret Celebrates Birthday

It was the first time in 25 years that she has spent her birthday away from her own royal family, now vacationing at Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

The princess and Lord Snowdon are visiting Snowdon's brother-in-law and sister, Viscountess de Vesci, at their Georgian home here.

The departure from royal custom meant a separation from Margaret's 9½-month-old son, Viscount Linley, who is at Balmoral with his aunt, Queen Elizabeth II.

Space Twins
Ships Three Miles Apart

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union's twin astronauts said Tuesday that only about three miles separated their ships at one time in space, but they never attempted a rendezvous and they parachuted to landings 125 miles apart.

Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich told newsmen that the Vostok III and Vostok IV, like their predecessors, weighed about five tons.

But they said the later models, which a Danish Communist newspaper had speculated weighed 8½ tons, were "more advanced and more comfortable."

"I am glad to supply the information," said Popovich with a big grin as he and Nikolayev addressed their first news conference in Moscow.

They did not make it clear when three miles separated them in orbit, but it presumably was shortly after Popovich was rocketed up, Sunday morning, Aug. 12, to join Nikolayev, who had been in space about 24 hours.

"I saw it (Nikolayev's ship) at once," Popovich said. "It looked like a very small moon in the distance."

Popovich dismissed a question about a possible rendezvous—the direct contact that would be necessary for building of platforms in space.

"We had no rendezvous assignment and the landing was strictly according to schedule," Popovich said.

He said they made their landings last Wednesday 125 miles apart south of Karaganda in Kazakhstan, about 1,500 miles south of Moscow. But they described the landing methods as confusing.

Popovich merely said, "I landed beside my spaceship."

His colleague clearly used the word parachute. "After a certain time," Nikolayev said, "I separated from the spaceship and made my landing by parachute."

New Teamster Fund
Inquiry Launched

CHICAGO (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy launched a new federal grand jury investigation Tuesday into the $180 million pension fund of James R. Hoffa's Teamsters Union.

U.S. Atty. James P. O'Brien said the August session of the Chicago federal grand jury would investigate the Teamsters' central states, southwest and south-east division pension funds, all headquartered in Chicago.

The Chicago grand jury was the latest in a series of investigations in Washington, Los Angeles and a dozen other cities into the fund's operations or the Teamsters themselves.

Federal officials have said they believe that loans from the pension fund have been extended to resort hotels, Las Vegas gambling casinos and other "unusual" investments.

Soviets Swap
Their Buses
For CarriersCover From Attack;
Medics Will Assist
Wounded Refugees

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet sentries traveling to the Red war memorial in West Berlin switched from buses to the cramped safety of armored personnel carriers Tuesday night to avoid exposure to new stoning attacks.

The carriers were tailed by American military vehicles all the way into and out of West Berlin without incident.

The Western Allies meanwhile took steps to halt violence at the Communist wall, among them the stationing of a U.S. Army ambulance on standby duty at the sector border to aid any refugees shot by East German guards.

The Russians, apparently tired of dodging rocks and bottles hurled by angry West Berliners crossed over from East Berlin in a protected convoy but without any show of arms.

Heavy rain and extra police discouraged any new outbursts by West Berliners protesting the slaying of a young East German refugee at the wall last Friday.

But the Soviets were taking no chances. In place of the usual buses for the change of guard at the war memorial located in the British sector, the sentries rode in three armored carriers.

Bringing up the rear were a Soviet staff car, an American military police sedan and two West Berlin motorcycle police. The convoy reached the memorial without incident.

On the trip back, also uneventful, the convoy was tailed by five U.S. M.P. cars as far as Checkpoint Charlie at the border.

A U.S. Army spokesman said he did not know how many Russians were in the vehicles.

The shooting of an East German refugee last Friday triggered three nights of bloody anti-Communist riots — and some anti-American outbursts — by enraged West Berliners that pushed this divided city to new heights of tension.

The Allies laid part of the blame for the violent wall demonstrations on Communist agents. They charged the Reds were trying to stir up trouble at a time when Moscow is raising pressure to force the Western garrison from the isolated city.

The rising tension in Berlin brought a flurry of diplomatic activity in Western capitals.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk called in Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin in Washington and discussed the events of the last few days in Berlin.

Soviet protests not accepted. The Soviet commandant, Col. P. V. Signaov, has refused to meet the Western commandants.

In retaliation, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, the U.S. commandant, twice refused to accept Soviet protests Sunday and Monday against West Berlin stoning of Russian buses.

Dispatch of the ambulance appeared to be an attempt to pacify West Berliners roused to fury by the failure of the West to help a fleeing East German bleeding slowly to death only 200 yards from the checkpoint last Friday after being wounded by Red guards.

The U.S. Army ambulance—painted Army drab and fitted with Red Cross flags—took up its post at the Checkpoint Charlie, crossing point at Friedrichstrasse in the U.S. sector. Three American soldiers sat inside.

In Washington, informed sources said Washington had given clearance for American soldiers in West Berlin to aid East German wounded on the Communist side of the wall. But they emphasized this does not include permission to help East Germans attempt to escape to the West.

The quake shattered windows in this crowded port city, opened cracks in new buildings and touched off wide panic.

Several towns and villages 150 miles across the Italian peninsula on the Adriatic seacoast were in darkness as a result of broken power lines.

Neapolitans fled from a five-second shower of falling stone and chips of concrete.

Many headed for the countryside and up the lower slopes of dormant Mt. Vesuvius, leaving Italy's third largest city to only part of its 1.5 million people for several hours.

As calm returned they streamed back into the city.

The quake registered at 5 on the 12-grade Mercalli intensity scale. The Faenza government observatory, 340 miles away in northern Italy near Bologna, said the earthquake knocked seismicographic needles off their recording drums.

President Amintore Fanfani telephoned the mayors of affected communities, telling them to report to Rome any damage and any need for emergency aid.

Police in Naples said property damage was negligible. Firemen patrolled streets littered with broken glass and inspected buildings for signs of structural weakness.

85 Of 104 Aboard Brazil Jetliner Survive Crash

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—The valor of civilians and Brazilian air force men plunging through blazing fuel oil to the rescue was credited Tuesday with averting a major disaster in the crash of a Brazilian jetliner.

Though some were badly injured, 85 of the 104 persons aboard the huge jet emerged alive from the wreckage Monday night. Thirteen passengers and a stewardess perished and five persons still were missing.

No Americans were aboard.

The Panair do Brasil DC8, carrying 93 passengers and 11 crew members, headed down a runway of Galeao Airport for a flight to Lisbon, Portugal.

Hundreds of friends and relatives watched horror-stricken as a starboard engine burst into flame and the jet, trailing fire, sped straight for the concrete seawall.

With its undercarriage ripped off, the plane crashed through the bulwark and dived into Guanabara Bay. Fuel oil blazed on the water.

"We ran pell-mell for the shore," said Jose Araujo, a cousin of a Brazilian passenger, "and expected the worst."

But they found the death toll relatively light. Most of the dead were Brazilians. One was an Englishman. Two were Russians.

Vote Probers Hear Three Witnesses

BALTIMORE (AP)—A grand jury investigating reports of irregularities in Maryland's May 15 primary election heard testimony Tuesday from three residents of Harrisburg, Pa.

The witnesses were Mrs. Bessie Fyffe, her husband, Mont, and William A. Miller, a notary public. The Fyffes figured in charges made earlier by Hyman Pressman, Baltimore attorney and public watchdog, that absentee ballots were mishandled in the primary.

Pressman had produced affidavits from the Fyffes, former Baltimore residents, that their absentee ballots had been given to James H. (Jack) Pollack, northwest Baltimore political boss, or some other worker in the 4th District. The Fyffe ballots were among those rejected by the elections board.

Red Wall Opens; Reunion Near

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—A year of tense waiting and red tape cutting between East Germany and the West ended joyously Tuesday for a suburban Grass Lake housewife and her family.

Mrs. Margaret Reuter learned Tuesday that East Germany had allowed her 77-year-old mother, Mrs. Helena Gruebnaue, to pass into West Germany at a Berlin checkpoint.

The crossing was believed to be only the third time East German officials have allowed one of their citizens to cross to the West since the Berlin wall was built a year ago.

The years of disappointment and months of tension are expected to turn into tears of happiness Wednesday when an American Airlines plane arrives at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The arrival will end a 25-year separation for the two women.

Five Exposed To Smallpox Still Sought

NEW YORK (AP)—Health authorities pressed a mercy hunt Tuesday for five persons who were the most immediately exposed to a teen-aged Canadian boy who arrived in this country with smallpox.

The youth, James Orr, 14, arrived at Idlewild Airport Aug. 11 after a flight from Brazil with his missionary parents. The party then traveled by train to Toronto where the boy was hospitalized with an ailment later diagnosed as smallpox.

The five targets of the authorities, none known by name, were listed by a Public Health Service spokesman in Washington as:

A porter who handled the baggage of the Orr party from the customs center at Idlewild to a taxi at the airport.

The cab driver who drove the Orr family to Grand Central Terminal from the airport. Police said he may have overcharged the family and therefore be reluctant to come forward. But they urged him to "forget any possible violation of the cab rules."

A second porter who handled the Orrs' luggage at Grand Central.

A woman at Grand Central who noted that the Orr boy was ill and tried to be helpful.

A Negro woman who shared a seat with young Orr during the final 15 or 20 minutes of his train ride from New York to Toronto.

Officials urged all of these persons to come forward and undergo vaccination, lest they come down with the disease themselves or spread it to others.

More than 3,000 New Yorkers already have undergone smallpox vaccinations because their paths crossed that of the Orr boy during his stopover here.

Tawes Predicts Maryland Demo Constitution

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Tuesday he expects the current squabble over a vacancy for state's attorney in Baltimore City to produce a constitution and by-laws for the Maryland Democratic Party.

The governor said if there had been such a set of rules and regulations for filling vacancies, some of the controversy surrounding the recent nomination of Francis J. Valle might have been avoided.

Valle, backed by forces of northwest Baltimore political leader James H. (Jack) Pollack, was nominated by the city Democratic committee to fill a vacancy caused by the death of state's attorney Saul Harris, who defeated Valle in the May 15 primary.

The nomination has been challenged in court on grounds that two of those voting in the majority were not qualified to sit on the committee.

Valle's nomination came on the day of Harris' funeral. Tawes, who tried through an emissary to hold up the action, later called it a "shabby political machination" which disregarded the rights of citizens of Baltimore.

The governor refused to say Tuesday whether he would support Valle if he finally becomes the certified candidate. He said he did not want to discuss the matter any further since it is now before the courts.

But he did say he thinks it points up how much a state constitution and by-laws for the Democratic party are needed. "Had we been working under a constitution and by-laws, I think the procedure of nominating someone to succeed Mr. Harris would have been orderly," Tawes said.

He said he looks for the state Democratic central committee to prepare such a set of regulations, which could be adopted at a special convention or the next regular party meeting.

Officers Of Bon Ami Co. Accused Of Fund Misuse

NEW YORK (AP)—Officers of Emil Morosini Jr., a director, vice president and secretary of the Bon Ami Co. were accused in State Supreme Court Tuesday of diverting about $500,000 of the company funds to their own use through dummy corporations, false entries and kickbacks.

The plaintiffs were Tel-A-Sign, Inc., Chicago-based sign and advertising materials company, described as owing 16.5 per cent of Bon Ami's stock, and Mr. and Mrs. Olen Webb of New York City, also shareholders.

Named as defendants were: R. Paul Weesner, board chairman; Justice Frederick Backer signed an order calling upon the defendant officers to show cause Friday why a receiver should not be appointed to oversee company affairs.

The suing stockholders charged that through their attorneys that the defendant officers entered into "schemes and devices" to conceal transfers of funds by improper entries in Bon Ami's books.

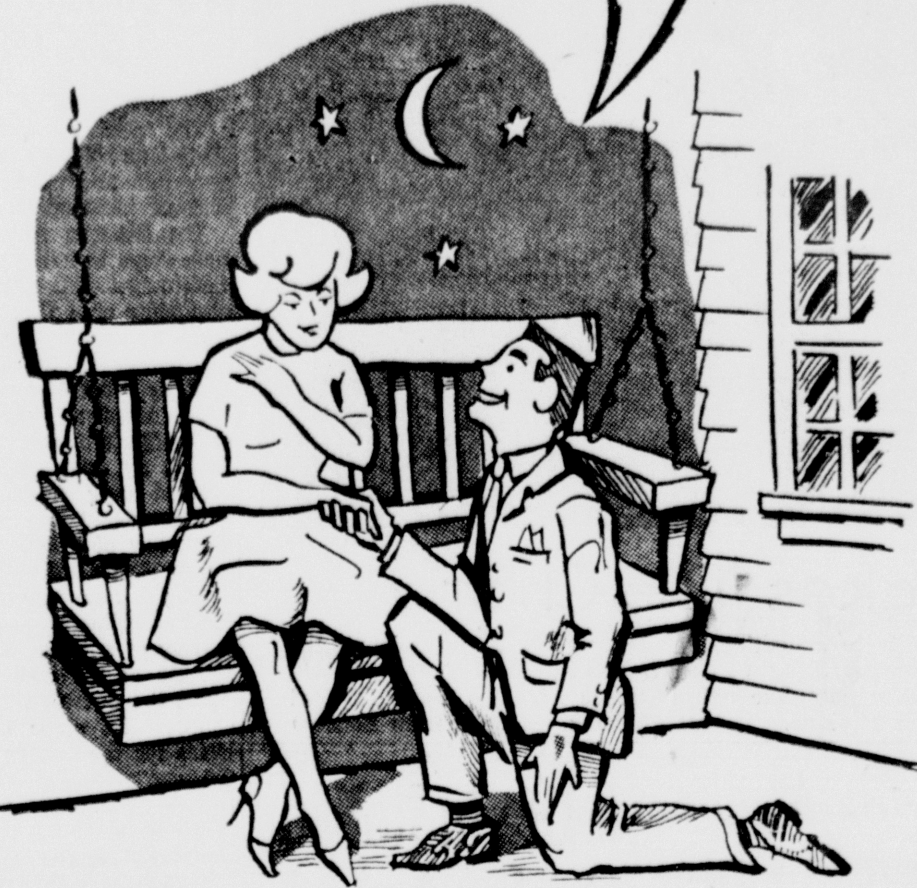

S&L Firm Placed Under Conservator

BALTIMORE (AP)—Judge Reuben Oppenheimer of Baltimore Circuit Court placed Monumental City Savings and Loan Association under the management of a conservator Tuesday.

Albert W. Ward, administrator of Maryland's savings and loan regulatory law, was appointed conservator of the Baltimore association.

Monumental City's funds have been frozen since March 17 when state officials sought receivership for the firm. The state claimed in its petition that the association was insolvent. The firm has denied this, however.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Sudden rebellion in the ranks? Even the best-behaved baby feels the need to rebel from time to time. And why not? A baby is a human being, entitled to a few human quirks. (Besides, this show of spirit means he's growing up.) So when your baby occasionally refuses to go along with his regular mealtime or naptime schedule, try to relax and let him relax before you feed or bed him down. If you don't force the issue, it will be easier to get baby back on schedule the next time around.

Baby will relish regular meal-times if they're kept "looking-forward-to" times. The needed ingredients? A smiling atmosphere. A goodly variety of Gerber Strained Foods. There are more than enough to keep baby's mealtimes zestful.

Variety review with a delicious point of view. Gerber Strained Foods offer plenty of range for menu change. 10 luscious fruits. 9 garden-good vegetables. 9 savory meats. 5 extra flavor-y high meat dinners. 4 scrumptious desserts. 7 fruit-luscious juice delights. Each one designed with a specific nutritional need in mind.

Four tips to tame a rock-a-bye rebel. (1) Nothing quite so relaxing as a rocking chair session. (2) A lullaby, sweet and low, still "hath charms to soothe." (3) A favorite cuddle toy somehow makes a crib seem cosier. (4) Grandmother offered a spot of warm milk to encourage drowsiness. Works today, too.

Specialties of the house. Don't forget these special foods for your baby: Gerber Strained Egg Yolk—delicate in flavor, custard-y in texture, high in iron and vitamin A. Gerber Teething Biscuits—extra-hard to ease tender gums, specially shaped for easy grasping. Gerber Cookies for toddlers—animal-shaped for fun, twice as much protein as most other cookies, plus B-vitamins in the icing. Gerber Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

Discuss Projects

The Centerville WSCS voted to donate $300 to the building fund and planned a turkey supper at a meeting conducted by Mrs. Charles Shinholt. The supper will be November 1. Mrs. Paul Rose, Mrs. Minnie Oster, Mrs. Ivan Mills, Mrs. Reese Zembower, Mrs. Edward Streett, Mrs. Clyde Rose, Mrs. Carl Elliott and Mrs. Thomas Nave will be in charge of the kitchen. Mrs. Vernon Elliott, Mrs. Richard Pilker and Mrs. Melvin Nee, tables.

Devotions on "Christian Maturity" were conducted by Mrs. Dwight Rose, and included responsive reading, prayer and hymns.

Others attending were Mrs. Homer Zembower, Mrs. Oleta Mickey, Mrs. Claude Streett, Mrs. John Stevenson, Mrs. Raymond Lyons, Mrs. Cecil Nave, Mrs. Vervle Nave, Esther, Norleen and Marie Stevenson, Kathy Miller and Nancy Mickey were guests.

Robert Hanley, Frederick Street, has returned from Gainesville, Fla.

Society To Make Purchase

Plans to buy stainless steelware for evening suppers were formulated at a meeting of the Murley's Branch WSCS, held at the home of Mrs. Margaret Blubaugh. A chicken supper, sponsored by the MYF was announced. It will be August 25 at the church, beginning at 5:30. Routine reports were given.

Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Helen Wilson and Mrs. Paul Robinette. The group sang "Savior Like a Shepherd," "This Is My Father's World," and "America the Beautiful," and recited the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Frances Yonker read the Scripture. Mrs. Homer Wilson read, and Mrs. Andrew Twigg, "When God Spoke" and Mrs. Walter Bender, "Talking With God." Mrs. Paul Browning, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. John Bowman, visiting the sick. Mrs. Wilson also spoke on Americans of Spanish-speaking backgrounds.

The September meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Twigg with Mrs. Yonker co-hostess and Mrs. Blubaugh having devotions. A social hour followed. Ten members and one visitor attended.

The VFW Past Presidents Club will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the post home. Because of illness the trip to Mrs. Alice Miller's has been canceled.

Sheriff Outlines Jail Needs

Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein conferred yesterday with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on recommendations he has for providing more security against attempted jail breaks at the county lockup.

Last week the sheriff and his deputies found four saw blades and several files hidden in the mattresses of two inmates. The bars on their cell had been sawed part way through and an attempt had also been made to saw at a steel bar on one of the large windows opening onto the jail yard.

The sheriff asked that the present ordinary glass windows in four large windows which range from the bottom to the second floor be removed and the balance be covered with glass block. There would be steel casement windows, with screening to provide ventilation. The glass block would allow the necessary light to shine through.

Use of the glass block and casement section would prevent prisoners from gaining access to the steel bars on the other side and thus eliminate sawing of the bars.

The sheriff also asked for repairs to the wiring and plumbing and installation of a new heating system. The locks on most of the cells are also in bad condition, the sheriff pointed out. A fire escape door should also be installed, he said.

During the discussion the sheriff said that with the glass block casement window installation he could continue to use prisoners as 'trustys' as they could not aid other prisoners via the windows.

Sheriff Haberlein also said that he recommends that four cell blocks be installed which would be of the maximum security type for use when a person is being held on a capital crime or else some hardened criminal is being held.

Most of the prisoners are persons who are serving short sentences for motor violations, or for some other minor offense. These prisoners could be maintained on separate floors in "dormitory" type cells.

Commissioners John J. Rowan, John T. Mason and Louis V. Shinnamon agreed that something should be done and asked the sheriff to obtain more detailed specifications so that the board would have something concrete to act upon.

Testing Program Planned By College

Allegany Community College announced yesterday plans for conducting an American College Testing Program examination and for acquainting local and area prospective students with the college program and registration.

The testing program will be conducted Monday, September 10, at the college.

Registrar William A. Smierling announced that he will be at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce, Baltimore Street to answer questions prospective students might have concerning the college and to make available registration forms.

Smierling will be at the Chamber offices Thursday, August 23, and Thursday, August 30, between the hours of 6:30 p. m. and 9:15 p. m. and Saturday, August 25, and Saturday, September 1, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., the college announced.

Drainage Pipe Problem Is Discussed

A rather heated discussion took place at yesterday's session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, between John J. Rowan, board president, and William Byrnes, of Eckhart.

Byrnes had come before the board in connection with a broken drainage pipe which he said is causing damage to some properties in the Eckhart section.

Rowan told Byrnes that he had contacted local State Roads Commission district officials and State Health Department sanitary division engineers and they met at the site. Rowan said the broken drainage pipe is not a county responsibility.

Rowan at one point blurted out "You're pressuring me because it's an election year."

Byrnes said he was interested only in solving a problem in the community in which he lives.

Byrnes also reported that the State Roads Commission crews Monday repaired a culvert which runs beneath old U.S. Route 40 and a section of the drainage pipe leading from the culvert.

There was an argument over whether or not the county had installed the original pipe. Rowan said the installation had been done by the state some years ago. Byrnes said he understood the county did the work, also some years ago.

Rowan said the county could not go onto private property to make such repairs as there are hundreds of similar situations throughout the county. He also said he understands the Health Department is planning on making dye tests to determine if any of the homes in the area near the drainage pipe are disposing of their sewage by that means.

Bids Authorized By Mayor, Council

Routine action of the Mayor and Council at its meeting Monday included the following:

Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder was authorized to advertise for bids on pipe in connection with an eight-inch sanitary sewer from Rose Avenue north 850 feet to White Avenue; from Rose 1,000 feet to Williams Road and on Haddon Avenue from Chelsea Street north 850 feet.

Bids were also authorized for two salt and cinder spreaders and for one four-wheel drive truck for the Street Department.

Council authorized payment of $60 to William F. Miller to cover expenses in connection with his attending the short course for water and waste treatment plant operators at Towson State Teachers College September 4-6.

Council accepted the bid of Cumberland Cement and Supply Company for calcium chloride for the Street Department at $2.05 for each 100 pound bag. Mrs. Roeder said this was not the lowest bid but inspection of the material offered by the low bidder showed it was not satisfactory for the city's purposes.

One-fourth of all housewives in the United States don't have any recipes at all. Of those who do, about one-third haven't used one in the past six months.

City Sewer Crew Begins Project

A full-time city sewer cleaning crew began work yesterday on a four-year project to clear up the system, Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, announced yesterday.

The work is being resumed, Mrs. Roeder pointed out, due to the continual filling up of pipes by drainage from hillsides.

As Cumberland is in a bowl surrounded by seven hills, the sewer system constantly has rocks, dirt and debris filling up the low-lying mains.

Ray Valentine, street and sewer superintendent, and Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, estimate that it will take four years to clean all of the major lines.

Then, Mrs. Roeder pointed out, the work should be started all over again, regardless who is in office at the time.

Cumberland's sewage system has another major problem, outside of geographical, which would take a tremendous amount of appropriations of city funds to solve.

That problem is the large number of sanitary sewers which also have to act as storm sewers.

Mrs. Roeder also pointed out that catch basins overflow and dump debris into the sewers, despite the fact that there is a crew cleaning out the basins all year round.

The heavy runoff from the hills brings much dirt, rocks and debris during and after storms such as the city has experienced this summer.

The sewer cleaning crew of three men will be under the jurisdiction of James Shaw, sewer foreman, and they will work at least nine months a year.

Mrs. Roeder pointed out that this crew also will be utilized during mild weather in the winter.

The three-man crew has two sewer cleaning rigs. These are set at two manholes and buckets are drawn back and forth in the sewer between the two openings. The buckets are dumped into a truck and the debris is hauled to a refuse area.

Valentine said it will take two days to familiarize the crew with the two machines and they will go to work on the four-year project on Wednesday.

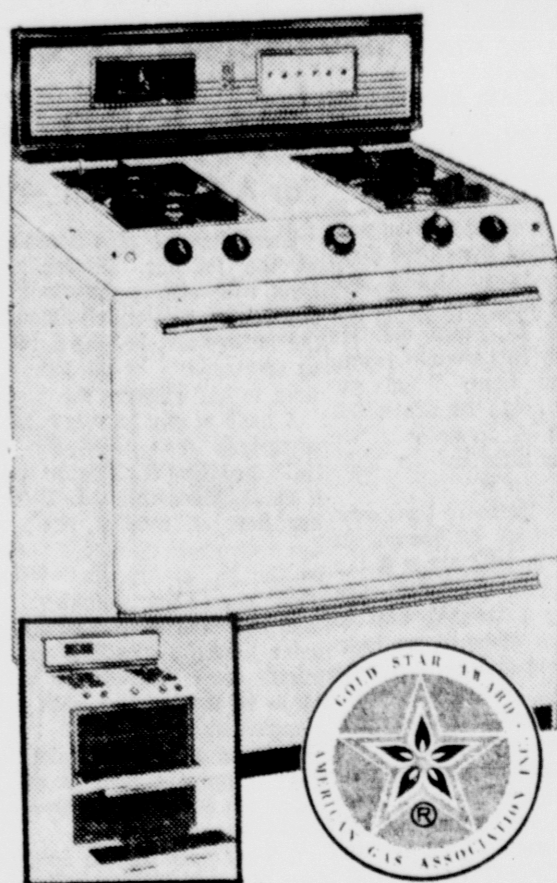

Mrs. Roeder To Attend Municipal Congress

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, will represent Cumberland at the 39th annual American Municipal Congress in Philadelphia August 25-29.

Mrs. Roeder was requested to represent the city by Mayor Earl D. Chaney.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father-in-law died seven months ago. Since that time I have felt like a widow because my husband has been with his mother almost every night.

For several weeks I said nothing because I knew she was depressed. I went with him at first but the cost of sitters made it impossible to keep it up. My mother-in-law has two teenagers at home so it's not as if she is all by herself. She also has brothers, sisters, friends and neighbors who have been attentive.

It has reached the point where my husband automatically picks up right after supper and goes over there every night of the week. When he comes home I am asleep. What am I going to do about this mother-in-law problem?—MARRIED BUT ALONE

DEAR ALONE: You don't have a mother-in-law problem — you have a husband problem. A man who leaves his wife every evening to go to the corner saloon, to play cards or to visit his mother, demonstrates rather clearly that he prefers these places to home. The big question is WHY? What's wrong with home?

Have a talk with him and try to find out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We live in a very lovely apartment building (not far from you). A middle-aged divorced woman with a 7-year-old child lives next door. This woman is attractive and looks younger than she is.

Our son is 19 years old. He seems to enjoy this woman's company a great deal. When she sprained her ankle he drove her all over town to do errands. He also takes her little boy for haircuts.

He spends a lot more time over there than I think he should. At first we used to joke about it but now I don't think it's funny. The other evening I wanted him to haul some stuff down to the locker room for me and he was next door, as usual. I walked in without knocking because I was mad. Well, I caught my son with his arms around this woman. He said they were dancing. There was no music. I feel like reporting her to the management. What is your advice? — THOROUGHLY DISGUSTED WITH CRADLE SNATCHERS.

DEAR THOROUGHLY: A boy 19 isn't exactly in a cradle—and this is not the building manager's problem. It's yours.

Your husband should have a frank talk with his son. This woman is too old and too experienced for him. A 19-year-old boy should be dating high school girls and college freshmen. Ordering him to stay away from her will do no good. Your husband should be frank, realistic and emphatic.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago my parents were divorced. I was placed in a foster home by the court. These people are paid to take care of me so

A strict Hands Off! policy promotes a clear complexion.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

For A Clear Skin — A Clean Scalp

Blemish-prone skin doesn't stop at the hairline. Generally, the girls with oily complexions have oily scalps, too—which means that the scalp must be cared for just as scrupulously as the face if you want to halt chances for infection.

A head of oily hair is a kind of super-trap for germ-laden dust. Daily brushing is essential to keep it clean. Since this will stimulate the flow of natural scalp oils, more frequent shampoos are next on the list of "musts." Using a good corrective shampoo, wash that hair and that head at least twice a week, spending an extra minute each time for a special scrub at the hairline with a soft complexion brush.

Between shampoos, take these tips to prevent your scalp and hair from acting as carriers of infection to your face:

1. Wear your hair in an off-the-face style, especially when your skin is in the active stage of breaking out.

2. Turn yourself into a compulsive hand-washer and nail-cleaner—and train those hands to stay away from your face and hair except when they are performing their basic grooming duties. (This puts an automatic ban on all those unconscious nervous mannerisms chin-tapping, nail-biting and curl-pulling—which is a good idea anyway for revving up that charm quotient.)

3. Suds your hairbrushes and combs several times a week, and your clips and curlers occasionally, too. Wash your hairnet each time you shampoo.

4. Protect your hair with a scarf or mop-cap whenever you dive into heavy housecleaning or gardening chores.

5. Dry-clean your scalp—with clean cotton balls soaked in astringent—whenever you notice oiliness building up.

6. Dry-clean your hairbrush during each daily brushing — by covering the bristles with cheesecloth or by wiping the bristles with it is purely a money deal for them. They are very nice folks, however, and do their best to make me feel at home.

Several girls I go to school with have been especially kind to me since I've been placed with these foster parents. They have invited me to their home for dinner and to their summer cottages for weekends. I'd like to pay them back by inviting them to dinner but I hate to impose on the people I live with. After all they are under no obligation to entertain my friends. Do you think it would be nerve of me to ask but you—VERA

DEAR VERA: Ask for permission to invite one girl at a time. I'll bet your foster parents would not mind at all. Make it clear you don't expect anything fancy or different. Tell them all you want is the opportunity to share whatever is on the table with a friend. Such a request would not be out of line.

Branches Slow Street Work

Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder said yesterday trees or tree branches are interfering with operation of the city street sweeper and Queen City Transit Line buses on some streets and remind property owners of an ordinance which holds them responsible for remedying the problem.

Under the ordinance, she said, the city is authorized to have the property owner remove the roadside tree or branches causing the trouble.

Such conditions have been reported to exist on the following streets and avenues, she said:

Browning, Boone, Arch, Grand, Third, Lena, Columbia, Frederick, Decatur, Greene, Chase, Mechanic (between Valley and Smith), Dingle Hill (hedge and brush), Virginia, Roberts, Potomac, Ella.

Memorial, Louisiana, Montgomery, Prince Georges, Hill Top Drive, Kent, Mary, Marion, Cecelia, Emily, Goethe, Lincoln, Washington, Fayette, Ridgedale, Gephart, Magruder, Wilmont, Beall and Paca.

It was indicated that there are others, but these are ones where the condition is more evident.

clean towelling every few strokes. Then you can be sure you're really removing oil and grime, not merely moving it around.

You're probably well-aware of the effects of sweets on blemish-prone skin. But do you know that spice, too, deserves a lot of blame for excessive oiliness, break-outs . . . even for dandruff? All those highly-salted and seasoned foods are usually greasy, too, which puts a double-hex on the "delicatessen diet" for anyone with skin-and-scalp problems.

Bids Being Sought For Heating System

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday instructed James G. Stevenson, clerk to the board, to obtain specifications and prepare an advertisement for bids on installation of a new heating system in the Union Street County Building.

The present coal-fired steam boiler furnace is antiquated and probably could not be repaired satisfactorily, according to reports given the board from a local heating and plumbing firm official.

The county board will ask for bids on both a coal-fired furnace and a gas-fired type.

WVU Receives $73,368 For Dentist Study

Use Of Assistants Is Advocated

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia University has received $73,368 from the federal government for the continuation of a program which trains dentists in the use of "chairside" assistants.

The idea behind the program is based on studies such as one by the Kellogg Foundation Institute which found that dentists can increase their productivity by about one-third by using such assistants.

The school received $11,128 last month as the second-year portion of a five-year grant to finance the program. A new $73,368 supplemental grant is for this year and the next three fiscal years. The combined grants will total $129,008 for the five-year period.

Federal assistance was requested after dental educators concluded that increasing use of dental assistants is needed to help meet growing patients demands arising from a population increase and a dental manpower shortage.

Students enrolled under the training program are assigned to senior dental students for two-week periods. They handle such jobs as making appointments, escorting patients from waiting rooms to the chair, and answering telephones. They also clean and sterilize instruments, mix some materials, help in laboratories, pass instruments and materials to the operator and perform other duties.

Dean Kenneth Randolph, Dentistry, said the program "shows dental students how much more efficient and effective his work can be by having a chairside assistant."

Council Hears Complaints In Frostburg

FROSTBURG — Dirty water, pigeons, and television reception problems were thrown at the Mayor and City Council at their mid-month meeting Monday evening.

The issue of cable television dominated the business agenda.

Frostburg Junior Association of Commerce appeared and presented the Mayor and Council with a petition bearing 1,268 names of persons supporting the "best possible" cable television service for the community.

James E. Kelly Jr., Jaycees president, told the Mayor and Council that his organization was backing the request of Potomac Valley Television Co. Inc. to move its service into Frostburg "because residents have indicated they want the best possible service."

The petition bearing the names was presented to the Council for verification of signatures.

Mayor Joseph James stated that the Council had decided to give Frostburg TV Company the first opportunity to provide cable TV.

John Sullivan, city attorney, told the group, which consisted of approximately 15 Jaycees and representatives from BPO Elks, that an agreement was being drawn up with the Frostburg TV Company and that a deadline was being inserted to state "not a year or not six months" for work to begin.

Council would not reveal full particulars of the agreement because it is not in its final form.

Also heard during the lengthy discussion were Thomas Hutcheson, Calvin Delbrook, Buford Saville, vice president of PV-TV, and William H. Geppert, attorney for PV-TV.

A group of irate housewives from the Allegany Street area demanded action on the dirty water situation existing in their locality.

It was brought out by this group, headed by Mrs. Alfred Fritz, that at times there is no water pressure and when it does return the water is so rusty that it is almost impossible to use.

Council stated they knew such a condition existed in that section, and that they were flushing mains and making plans for a storage tank for the area.

Water Commissioner James Kenney said that the elevation at this point was approximately the same as the reservoirs on Big Savage Mountain and that when any quantity of water was being used at the east end of town the pressure would drop and that the low pressure, then high pressure, apparently caused surges in the water mains, and that all rust and sediment was being loosened.

He said that the city engineer was in the process of drawing up plans for a storage tank. The city will then take action on the matter, he added.

The delegation also complained of the dusty street. Street Commissioner William Preston said that he would try to do something this year if the budget allowed, and that this street was in his program to be paved next year.

Miss Margaret Jones, Frost Avenue, complained of pigeons roosting on her house and making a mess. Police Commissioner George Kennedy said that he would consult with his men to see if the pigeons could be destroyed.

Fire Unit Closes Charter October 31

WESTERNPORT — The newly-organized Ladies Auxiliary of Potomac Fire Company 2 will close its charter October 31, according to Mrs. Charles Legge, secretary.

The auxiliary commended merchants and businessmen for their donations toward the organization, and Mrs. Jane Gardine for her work in collecting contributions.

The unit will hold its next meeting August 27.

Do You Suffer From Sick, Throbbing Migraine Headaches?

New Medical Discovery Never Before Available
Now Released To Public. No Prescription Needed.

Today, science has announced a doctor's new formula which has been especially developed to relieve both the throbbing pain and sickish feeling of migraine-type headaches. Tests conducted by a practicing New York physician showed that in patient after patient—pain relief and comfort were obtained in minutes. And all without the use of narcotics, cocaine or ergot remedies which may upset the stomach and so further aggravate the condition.

This remarkable new formula is called Duplexin. It is the first headache discovery in the history of medicine with this exclusive formula. (A unique 2-layer pink and white tablet). It relieves both headache pain and a sick, upset stomach with this exclusive formula.

Here are the medical facts why Duplexin is safer, faster, more effective—why it's unlike the usual headache remedies. Only Duplexin unites powerful doctor-approved pain relievers with this special stomach-soothing antacid. In seconds, Duplexin does what no aspirin or buffered aspirin can ever do. It contains exclusive, hospital-tested medications not found in any alkalizer or salt. Duplexin's white layer concentrates on relieving pain faster. Throbbing pain relieved in minutes. Its pink layer relieves that sickish feeling and protects your stomach as it keeps on speeding relief.

Duplexin also calms nervous stress (which so often causes migraine) and helps relieve depression. Taken at the first sign of an attack, Duplexin actually helps prevent those migraine pains. Ask for Duplexin Tablets at any drug store. Now available without prescription.

13 Answer Appeal To Aid Semi-Invalids

Allegany County Health Department and Welfare Board have received seven more replies to their joint appeal to county residents to take aged semi-invalids into their homes.

This makes a total of 13 responses since the Adults Foster Care Program began several weeks ago.

The two agencies, along with the Allegany County Commission on Problems of the Aging, are seeking private homes for aged semi-invalids after they have been discharged from hospitals. Nursing homes in Allegany and Garrett counties are overcrowded and if private homes are available the invalids can be released from hospitals sooner, which also will alleviate crowded conditions in those institutions.

Residents who take the semi-invalids into their homes will be compensated by the individuals or by the Welfare Board.

One local citizen has been particularly impressed by the Adult Foster Care program and the need for nursing homes in the county. Alphonsus J. Madero, 724 North Centre Street, has written letters to prominent people in the federal, state and county governments about the critical need for additional homes for the aged in this county. He has received replies from most of the individuals he wrote to, including Anthony Celebrezze, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary; Arthur Goldberg, Secretary of Labor; J. Glenn Beall, Senator from Maryland; Nelson Rockefeller, Governor of New York; William Walsh, House of Delegates; John Curran, superintendent of state prisons; John Geare, president of Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company; John T. Mason, county commissioner, and Mayor Earl D. Chaney.

Additional information concerning private homes for semi-invalid aged persons may be obtained at the Health Department or Welfare Board offices.

Council Has Display

The Council of the Alleghenies, the new organization designed to promote interest in this section of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, has an exhibit under the grandstand at the Cumberland Fair.

The map, outlining the Allegheny Highland area of the three states, was done by Bonnie Dawson, 324A Beall Street, who will be a senior at Allegany High School when classes resume next month.

Persons interested in the council and its objectives are asked to sign their names and addresses to available cards and deposit them in a box at the display.

Gordon Will Attend SC Society Meeting

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist for Allegany County Soil Conservation Service, will attend the 17th annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society at Sheraton-Park Hotel, Washington, next week.

Allegheny District is a member of Old Line Chapter of the society which along with Virginia and Washington (D.C.) chapters will host the meeting.

Kenneth Stone, county soil scientist, is a charter member of the Old Line Chapter which was formed in 1945.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota is the main speaker for the meeting. He will address a banquet meeting climaxing the session. Major society award presentations will be made at that time.

Ellerslie Firemen Plan Music Program

The Carroll County Ramblers will present a program of hillbilly music tomorrow at 8:30 at the Ellerslie fire hall under sponsorship of the volunteer firemen of that community.

Featured on the program will be Lee and Dottie. Firemen said children under 12 will be admitted free. Refreshments will be served.

Hats of the Middle Ages were comparatively simple caps or hoods, but in the 14th and 15th centuries, extravagant and eccentric shapes and proportions were developed.

Man Given 30 Days In Default Of Fine

A local man was sentenced to 30 days in the Allegany County jail in default of $100 fine imposed yesterday by Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt, who found his guilty of three charges filed by city police.

William Glen Sponaugle Jr., 312 Independence Street, was charged with resisting arrest, drunk and disturbing the peace by police who nabbed him on Gay Street early Sunday morning. Officer James Poling was the arresting officer.

Fruit spraying to protect crops was introduced in 1878.

Red Cross Swim Classes Completed

Two American Red Cross swim classes were completed at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club pool. Michael Wanda Jr. was instructor for both courses.

Five completed a beginner swimmer class. They are Lisa Holbrook, 408 Washington Street; Jimmy Bishop, 206 Monroe Street; Sharon Harris, 919 Weir Avenue, LaVale, and Caryann Hartman, 629 Patterson Avenue. Sharon Harris and Chuck Davis also completed an advanced beginner swimmer course.

The modern mobile home (or house trailer) now comes equipped with a wood-burning fireplace but only on special order of the buyer.

Unionist Stress Is Premature Slant

Before the $20 billion Alliance for Progress rehabilitation program for Latin America gets its first foot off the ground, some of its activities are sowing the seeds of dissension in the countries the program is expected to aid. One of these is its school in Washington, D. C. to train Latin unionists in the art of "democratic unionism."

A class of 43 union leaders from Latin America is finishing a three-month course in "negotiating strategy, grievance procedures, organizing techniques and the general questions of automation and productivity."

"Democratic unionism" is practically unknown to many regions of Central and South America. Many of the wild disorders which turn political protest into chaos are fomented and led by the leftist labor leaders. And international communism is known to be making a heavy pitch for the support of Latin labor bosses.

But the basic goal of the Alliance for Progress is the tedious building of some kind of industry, some kind of trade, some agriculture where now there are only barren lands, idle resources and hungry people. Capital and organizing talent are needed to put all the factors of production together in some sort of economic fashion, and a lot of business confidence is needed to overcome the fears of centuries of traditional state dominance.

After the spark of recovery has been kindled into a more lasting substance, the time will be more opportune to begin improving other elements of society. Concentrating on the primary target until some inroads are made is not only common sense, it is the only path to success when the task is as monumental as the one assigned under the Alliance for Progress.

Unless some industries can be started and some agricultural progress made, the students graduated from the alliance union school will find slim opportunities to practice their calling back home.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Talking About Money

When we need to cut expenses, why not look into relief? Senator Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia recently called attention to the fact that relief checks are sent to job-holders and to folks in jail in the District of Columbia.

In many large cities, especially in New York, relief encourages illegitimacy — the more children a woman has the more relief she gets.

There is a street in my neighborhood which might be called a "relief block" and it has had the most surprising population explosion imaginable. If these relief-taking parents are taking care of their children, it must be by some remote method because the children are on the sidewalks, rain or shine. These women could earn a living, particularly at household services which are, these days, profitable.

One question that arises is who is physically handicapped. The definition can be made very tight. A physically handicapped person is one who by no means and under no circumstances can earn a living. When one realizes that Beethoven was totally deaf when he wrote his greatest symphony and that he lived at a time when there were no hearing aids, it is impossible to say that a deaf man is physically incapacitated. Bernard Baruch, Herbert Hoover and, I believe, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt wear hearing aids and they certainly do a day's work every day.

The President carries his heavy load with a broken back; Franklin D. Roosevelt suffered from the effects of polio. My friend, Victor Ridder, one of the great publishers of this country, has had about all the serious illnesses a man can have and he goes his merry, even joyous way. Every once-in-a-while, he gets knocked out by something that kills most, but he soon gets up and goes to work.

Of course, I know some who when they reach their 50s believe that they should be physically incapacitated. They assume that their time has come. They first become grumpy; then their back aches; then their feet hurt and finally they become a pain in the neck. Some such think that they have outlived their usefulness and that they should be supported. Others of this type try to be useful by hating everybody, by cursing those who are younger and more alert. About such I do not write. They will never go on relief but they might end up in a strait jacket because hatred is a poison which harms only those who hate.

Senator Byrd complained that relief money was sent to alcoholics, some of whom were in jail. An alcoholic is a sick man with an allergy for alcohol. He is not exactly a drunk, although, so far as the rest of us are concerned, there is no difference. An alcoholic and a drunk can make the same nuisances of themselves. Surely while a fellow is in jail, "drying out," as the expression is, he needs no relief money. I have, from time to time, employed alcoholics and when sober, they can work like anybody else. There is no telling when they will go "off." Give an alcoholic cash money and he will go on a spree. Alcoholics Anonymous has plenty of proof that I am wrong; my check-book is evidence that I am right.

What happens to relief when unemployment increases? Whenever I get a questionnaire to fill out about somebody, I tell the precise truth. In at least one case that I recall, relief was refused because my reply indicated that there could be no question but that the person could get a job if she wanted to. If she had no job, it was because she preferred not to work.

Now that we talk about cutting down on the cost of government, it might be useful to look into the entire question of relief and see whether it has done good or harm. The social workers will not be happy about my proposal because there was a time when social workers were few and had great difficulty in finding jobs. There were some settlement houses which could use them. Nowadays, the social worker is all over the place advising, counselling, gathering statistics, writing papers on all sorts of subjects. The record is that juvenile delinquency is on the rise.

Surely if some Congressional committee has nothing better to do, it might go into this matter of relief very thoroughly, to discover if the taxpayer's charity is not being abused by those who have discovered how to eat without working.

Our Answer To Vostok III and IV

What Can Be Done About The Population Boom?

(Joseph Alsop is on vacation. During his absence his column will be written by reporters expert in national and international affairs.)

WASHINGTON—High birth rates and falling death rates, especially in under-developed countries, are increasing the population of the world at a frightening pace. Three children are born somewhere on earth every time the clock ticks off two seconds. In 1961 the population of the planet passed the three billion mark. If things go on as at present, the number will double to six billion before the end of the century and double again to 12 billion by the year 2031—in other words, four times as many people as now only 70 years from now.

Latin American countries, whose combined population is increasing at a rate of 2.55 per cent a year, have the highest over-all regional rate of growth. But large countries like India and Red China, whose growth rates are almost as high, are making much bigger numerical contributions to the population boom. The number of inhabitants of India rise by eight million or more every year, of China by from 12 million to 15 million. Annual growth rates for individual countries range from less than 1 to 1 per cent in Great Britain to as high as 4 per cent in Ghana. The rate in the United States averaged nearly 2 per cent in the 1950s but has been declining recently.

Mathematicians make horrendous predictions about the consequences of man's present capacity to multiply. It has been figured, for example, that the time is coming when there will be only one square yard of arable ground for each human being and a man will have to kill 5,000 of his neighbors to get enough land to raise his own food. But demographers give assurances that it won't work out that way. They point out that projections of population trends have raised the danger signals; now people can be counted on, they say, to heed the warning. Just as growth rates have gone up because of increasing ability to "control death," so the rates can be expected gradually to go down because of increasing ability to control birth.

Oral contraceptives have been drawing chief attention in matters of birth control. Research in this field was started in 1951 by a Massachusetts doctor. Clinical testing began five years ago in a number of American cities and in Puerto Rico, Haiti, Mexico and Great Britain. The new birth control pill was cleared by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration in May 1960 and is now available by prescription in this country under the trade name Enovid.

Use of the pills has frequently been accompanied by side effects, mainly symptoms like those of early pregnancy, but no serious results have been noted so far. Oral contraceptives have the advantage of affording a method of birth control that is believed to be virtually foolproof, in any case far more dependable than any other method. The pills cannot be relied on to prevent pregnancy, however, unless they are taken daily on a schedule carefully adjusted to the menstrual cycle.

Because timing is so much of the essence, oral contraceptives

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

Your guest columnist Gaston Coblenz in Monday's News reported that "uninformed foreign capitalists and assorted miscreants" who buy gold instead of American dollars are now pictured as dimwits who don't understand "cultural lag." For if they did understand this common disease that every sophisticated intellectual learns practically at childhood, they wouldn't go around pretending they didn't hear President Kennedy's reassurances via Teletar, a great private enterprise undertaking. As every sophisticated knows, as this writer himself learned many years ago when studying sociology at the University of Chicago, "cultural lag" is a technical term devised by the late great William Field Ogburn to denote the failure of man's institutions to keep pace with his technological development. Thorstein Veblen used the concepts Ogburn's words but that doesn't make any difference because President Kennedy told us long ago that we must be "sophisticated" in our "new" treatment of the economic ills that beset our nation.

Now this writer, who is just passing through your wonderful mountain city, where the air and water are as free and pure and unspoiled as when pioneers went through the Cumberland Gap on their way West, is studying for a Ph.D. in Economics at the University of Maryland, and he is somewhat upset by this usage of a technical term of sociology by dilettante political scientists who speak profoundly of economics as if they themselves were related to Adam Smith. Not even their Leader would approve of this intellectual corned beef and cabbage.

To be sociologically technical in the field of economics, one could correctly say that Labor's strike is a form of cultural lag, or he could be sociologically technical in the field of political science, one could correctly say that the disenfranchisement of the American stockholders is a form of cultural lag. But let's not use it as a swear word preparatory to "taking our toys and going home."

Medical Riddle: What Causes Arthritis?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

"I'm a victim of rheumatoid arthritis," writes C. R. "My doctor tells me this disease is due to infection but I don't understand just what type. Can you tell me how I picked up the germs and whether it is safe for me to visit my grandchildren and cook for the family?"

"While I'm on the subject I'd like to express my gratitude to the medical profession for oral cortisone. I know I would be in a wheel chair if it were not for this drug. It is expensive but I'm glad to spend my money on it and do without other things."

The cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not known. At one time infections were blamed but newer theories center about heredity and hypersensitivity to certain immune bodies in the blood.

But this reader need not be concerned, even if we were to go back to the time when infections were considered the culprits in rheumatoid arthritis. In such instances, the causative organisms initiated the disease and then disappeared from the body. Careful studies failed to find such micro-organisms in the involved joints or other tissues. As a result, rheumatoid arthritis cannot be passed along during contacts with other members of the family.

This type of arthritis is a generalized condition and the painful, swollen joints represent a reaction to internal changes. No one knows why the smaller joints usually are involved, especially those of the hands, wrists, and feet. Other joints and tissues may be affected but not to the same extent.

The relief of pain following the use of corticosteroids such as cortisone is dramatic. It is unfortunate that these products do not cure the disease.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on rheumatoid arthritis if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TOMORROW: Plant pollination.

Tito's Proposed Visit To Moscow Raises Question Of American Aid

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson, who once spent two years in the Balkans, long considered the No. 1 breeder of war, today discusses the big gamble taken by the United States in aiding Yugoslavia.)

PULA, Yugoslavia — Whether the one billion dollars which the United States has spent for aid to Yugoslavia is wasted or well invested will hang in the balance when President Tito goes to Moscow late this year or early next.

That he is taking such a trip was perhaps the most important news Tito gave me during the lengthy interview at his Island of Brioni last week.

"I have been invited to spend a vacation in the Soviet Union," he said, "but so far I have had no time to go. Perhaps at the end of this year or early next year, however, I shall go. I have been invited to rest," he said frankly, "but of course that means to talk."

Earlier, he had said that he planned to talk to Premier Khrushchev about patching up his differences with the United States. However, it is just as certain that Khrushchev will seize the visit to try to woo Tito back into the Soviet orbit as it is certain that Southern Senators will filibuster against civil rights. Nothing galls the Kremlin more than an independent Yugoslavia building up 70 per cent of its trade with the West, opening its doors to thousands of tourists from the West, receiving U. S. fighter planes and other military equipment from the West, and at times thumbing its supposedly red, but actually pink, nose at Moscow.

The leaders of the Kremlin, however, read the newspapers. And when they see that Sen. John Tower of Texas almost accuses President Kennedy of treason for selling fighter planes to Tito—though the deal was actually closed by Eisenhower—and when they see Sen. Frank Lausche of Ohio whipping the Senate into such a tizzy that it votes to cut off all aid to Yugoslavia, then you can be sure the leaders of the Kremlin will make the most of it.

Which Way Tito?

The big question, therefore, is: Will the one billion-dollar gamble of the Truman-Eisenhower-Kennedy administrations be wasted? Will Yugoslavia, the independent, semi-westernized Communist country be cajoled back to the Kremlin fold?

It's a question the American Ambassador in Belgrade is worrying about and the chancelleries of Europe are speculating about. George Kennan, a former ambassador to Moscow and an expert on Russian-Yugoslav affairs, has already taken some soundings. The Yugoslav government knows that next year they will only get a dribble of $10,000,000 in surplus U. S. farm products, and the ambassador is afraid Yugoslav leaders will politely say "no thanks" and accept instead the super-generous economic concessions dangled before them by Moscow.

Personally, I don't think this will happen. On the surface, I admit the odds are in favor of the ambassador. But long experience with the Yugoslavs and some residence here in the old days convinces me that the insatiable Yugoslav yearning for independence that dates back to the days of the Turks will come out on top.

During the war, pleading telegrams sent by Tito to "Grandpa," the code name for Stalin, begging for supplies, went ignored and unanswered. Stalin's chief concern at that time was Tito's fiercely fighting partisans would not antagonize the British and Americans by being too Communist.

"Why did you need to form a special proletarian brigade," Stalin wrote Tito in March 1942. "The British and the Yugoslav king are justified in suspecting the partisans of acquiring a Communist character and aiming at Sovietizing Yugoslavia."

"Remember," Stalin warned on another occasion, "the Soviet has treaty relations with the King of Yugoslavia"—then denounced by Tito.

And when Stalin finally did get around to sending a military mission to give at least moral support to Tito, Brigadier Fitzroy MacLean, British attaché to Tito, tells in his fascinating book on Tito, "The Heretic," how the first act of the Russians was to demand elaborate laboratories which the partisans did not have.

Khrushchev Liberalizes

Stalin even complained that the partisans were using red stars on their uniforms which would unnecessarily alarm the British—all of this culminating in the break between Tito and the Soviet in 1948 when on June 28, Yugoslavia was expelled from the cominform.

"I shall shake my little finger," Stalin savagely warned, "and there will be no more Tito."

But Tito didn't budge. His friends in the satellite countries who dared show leanings toward independence were shot. Attempts were made on his own life. He was abused and boycotted. But Yugoslavia did not waver on the vine. U. S. aid came to the rescue and Yugoslavia went its own way, more vigorous, more healthy, and more democratic than any of the satellite countries.

Came the death of Stalin. Khrushchev liberalized the Kremlin and made a special trip to Belgrade where, in the presence of the entire Yugoslav nation, he abjectly apologized for its treatment by Stalin. It was a sincere and amazing reversal.

Next day, Borba, official organ of the Yugoslav government, published an editorial stating that Yugoslavia would not participate in the "Soviet crusade against capitalism."

There the matter has stood. Despite all sorts of tempting offers, Tito has not rejoined the Soviet orbit. Senators Tower, Lausche, Proxmire, and Goldwater, to be sure, have recently given Tito's independence policy a hefty kick in the seat of the pants with their demands—which nearly succeeded—that the United States cut off aid to Yugoslavia. But even so, I do not think Tito will sign up again with Moscow. He will be friendly, accept some trade concessions, act as unofficial mediator between the United States and Russia. But he will remain independent.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The day I became a blackmailer was a cool one. I carried a coat. Under the coat was a book. It was called "Sister Carrie," and was written by Theodore Dreiser. I had never met Mr. Dreiser, but I was about to turn the thumb screws on his hand. He was a great author, as profound, let us say, as Mr. Hemingway and more intelligent than Mr. Faulkner.

Dreiser had written "The Genius," "An American Tragedy," "Jenny Gerhardt" and a number of others, including one called "A Gallery of Women." In that last one, there is no mention of his secretary, but from the notes I had in my pocket, she belonged to it. Up front, my notes said that Mr. Dreiser, an aged admirer of Communism, had gone to Harlan, Kentucky, to articulate (you know, talk it up) for a lot of coal miners who were on strike.

Mr. Dreiser had taken with him one pretty secretary and one slightly used portable typewriter. The secretary and the portable had their hotel room, and Mr. Dreiser had his. Somehow, some sheriff's deputies had spied on the secretary and, when she visited the profound thinker to take some dictation, the fuzz stood some matches against the outside of his door with a clock beside it.

They photographed both at night. Then they photographed the same matches — still standing — in the morning. All it proved was that when Dreiser was in the mood for dictating, he was in the mood. The cops, however, put another interpretation on it and gave the writer until sundown to get on a train for New York.

He had been a literary hero of mine, but he was chicken at heart. He and the girl cleared out before the letters had been half typed. Now my city editor wanted a follow-up story. So, with a copy of "Sister Carrie" under my arm, and a topcoat over it, I went to an old hotel on the upper west side. I knew that Dreiser wouldn't want to talk. I also knew that, above all else, he hated to autograph books.

I was too young to realize that none of it mattered. Neither Dreiser nor his autograph nor me. I thought all three were important. So I knocked on his door and a hotel maid told me to go away. I said all right, but it was really too bad because I had the latest A.P. dispatch from Kentucky, and Mr. Dreiser didn't even know what those lousy mine owners were saying about him.

In a moment, Dreiser was at the door. He was a stout man with watery eyes and skin like biscuit dough. "What," he said imperiously, "are they saying?" I pointed to the suite of rooms behind him. "May 17 . . ." I said,

He looked like someone who has been traduced twice. "Oh damnit," he said, "come in. Come in."

I read the latest news, in which the big mine bosses called him immoral, a disgrace to American letters, a man who should have been detained and jailed. Dreiser had big ears, and steam came out of them like a pants pressing machine. "Now let me tell you something," he said. I reached for a pencil.

"Wait a minute," I said. I took out my copy of Sister Carrie, and put my copy paper on top of it. He sat at a desk which was really an old Steinway piano with the guts taken out. I pointed to the book. "Sister Carrie," I said gleefully. He leaned back and growled. "I can see that much," he said. I smiled. "Boy," I said, "what I wouldn't give for an autograph."

"Not a chance," he said. "If you know anything about me, young man, you know that I never autograph books. A barbaric custom designed to make a writer contribute a few more words in his own hand. Nothing doing."

"Sure," I said. "I understand. Now, before I start taking down your denial — I'm assuming you will have the decency to deny — I wonder whether I should lead the story off with Harlan County's charges against you, followed by a short paragraph of quotes from you, or whether it might not be better to open with your thoughts about America and the down-trodden miners and close with a brief mention of you getting caught with the matches."

I looked up at the ceiling to think. Mr. Dreiser looked up at the ceiling. Then he looked down. His face wore a malicious smile. "All right, my young friend," he said, "let me have the book." In it he wrote: "For Jim Bishop, from Theodore Dreiser." No love and kisses. No "to my friend"; just "For."

When I left, he shook hands briefly. "You won't get very far with your writing," he said. I bowed. "I may never be able to afford a secretary," I said. Then I went back to my paper, and wrote the story properly, which was to lead off with his wild denial, because the news of the accusation was 24 hours old and had already been published everywhere.

The other day, I was dusting books. Out of hundreds, "Sister Carrie" slipped off the shelf into my hands. I flipped the cover open and saw the autograph. The thought occurred to me that I was indeed a novice blackmailer. I should have asked for his signature on a check.

Jim Beatty Runs Mile In 3:56.3, Fastest Ever By An American

10,000 Persons See Thrilling Helsinki Race

Californian's Time Misses World Mark By Two Seconds

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Powerful Jim Beatty reeled off the mile in 3 minutes 56.3 Tuesday — the fastest ever by an American citizen—and missed by less than two seconds his bid for a world record.

It was the second time in four days that the 5-foot-6, 128-pound flier from the Los Angeles Track Club had lowered the best American performance for the distance.

Last Saturday at White City Stadium in London Beatty had clocked 3:56.5 in a phenomenal race in which five runners cracked the once impenetrable 4-minute barrier.

10,000 See Race

Three men bettered four minutes in a thrilling race staged before a tense crowd of 10,000 under perfect conditions in Helsinki's huge Olympic Stadium.

Jim Grelle of Portland, Ore., second in the London race, again gave Beatty the strongest run for it, finishing as runnerup in 3:58.8. Olavi Salonen, the Finnish champion, placed third in 3:59.1.

Beatty had hoped with good conditions and proper pacing from his American teammates to better the 3:54.4 world record held by New Zealander Peter Snell. But he apparently held off too late for his slashing final kick.

Two records, however, were equaled in the race. Beatty's time for the shorter 1,500 meters (the mile is 1,609 meters) was 3:40.8, tying the stadium record set by Hungarian Sandor Iharos in 1955. Salonen matched his own Finnish mark for the distance.

It was the hottest day of the summer in Helsinki—72 degrees—and there was virtually no wind. The fast red track was in perfect shape.

Morris Is Victor

Ron Morris, the American champion from Los Angeles, won a pole vaulting duel with Finland's record-setter, Pentti Nikula, with a leap of 16 feet, 1 inch—equaling his best effort this year.

Nikula, whose leap of 16 feet, 2½ inches last June is pending for recognition as a world mark, could get no higher than 15-8.

Morris previously had done 16-1 in the U.S.-Russia track meet at Palo Alto, Calif.

New York Mets Break 13-Game Losing Streak

Beat Pirates, 5-4, After 8-6 Defeat

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets snapped their 13-game losing streak Tuesday when Marv Throneberry hit a pinch three-run homer in the ninth inning to give them a 5-4 nightcap victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who won the opener, 8-6, on Felix Mantilla's three-base error in the ninth.

Throneberry was summoned from the first base coaching line with two men on base and two out in the ninth inning to pinch hit for Jim Hickman. He hit a 1-1 pitch off reliever Roy Face onto the upper right field stands to snap the Mets' second longest losing streak of the season.

Pinch-hitter Richie Ashburn had singled to open the ninth and when Harvey Haddix walked Joe Christopher, he was replaced by Face, who had saved the Pirates' opening game victory for Diomedes Olivo.

Face struck out Charlie Neal and then gave up a run-producing single to Mantilla. After Frank Thomas fled out, Throneberry was beckoned from his unusual coaching stint and he responded with his 13th homer.

Roger Craig, who came to starter Craig Anderson's relief with one out in the ninth inning of the opener, was the victim of Mantilla's misplay and suffered his 20th defeat of the season. Three of the four runs the Pirates scored in the ninth were unearned.

Anderson, who has not won a game since May 12, appeared a good bet to break his personal string of 12 straight defeats as he went into the ninth inning of the first game with a 6-4 lead.

He retired the first hitter but Bob Skinner beat out an infield single for the 1,000th hit of his major league career and Smoky Burgess walked. At this point, Craig was summoned to relieve Anderson and promptly walked Roberto Clemente to load the bases.

Jim Marshall then pinch hit for Don Clendenon and tapped a soft roller to Mantilla at third. Mantilla chose to concede one run at the plate and threw to first base. His throw sailed far over Throneberry's head and three runs scored on the error. Olivo subsequently singled home the fourth run of the inning.

Anthony Matese Gets Ace On 7th At Maplehurst

Anthony "Tony" Matese scored a hole-in-one at the Maplehurst Country Club yesterday, connecting for his ace on the 164-yard No. 7.

"Tony" and his wife, Marie, were playing the Maplehurst course when he canned the shot with a No. 7 iron.

He thus duplicated the feat turned in by his wife in 1959 when she made a hole-in-one on No. 7 while playing in a twosome.

Matese's ace is the second of the year at Maplehurst, the first being credited to Richard Heacock of LaVale on par three No. 7 June 10.

Since the course was opened in the spring of 1956 seven holes-in-one have been recorded at the Frostburg course. Others credited with aces are Melvin "Buddy" Rice, John Sleeman, Al Via and Tony Peretti.

Buffalo Defeats New Jersey, 7-3, In Legion Final

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — New York defeated New Jersey 7-3 Tuesday to capture the American Legion Junior baseball Region 2 tournament championship.

It was the fifth straight victory for New York, represented by Post 799 of Buffalo, after an initial loss. The New York team thus qualified for the national playoff beginning Aug. 28 at Bismarck, N.D.

Although outhit 10-8, the New Yorkers profited by six New Jersey errors and five unearned runs to wrap up the title. New Jersey, represented by Post 187 of Paterson, suffered both its defeats in the double-elimination tournament at the hands of New York.

Valmy Thomas, Former Major Leaguer, Shot

Catcher's Condition Reported Critical

ATLANTA (AP)—Valmy Thomas, former major league catcher, was shot in the International Baseball League, was reported in critical condition Tuesday after being shot.

The 32-year-old Negro, a native of the Virgin Islands, apparently was shot, according to Lt. R. F. Jordan of the coroner's office, by Cleveland Lyons, 42, who then took his own life.

The shooting resulted from a dispute over a woman in a house. Thomas fled the house, crossed a street and collapsed. He was taken to Grady Memorial Hospital where he was given emergency treatment and transferred to another hospital.

Thomas spent five years in the majors, playing with the New York Giants in 1957, San Francisco Giants in 1958, Philadelphia Phillies in 1959, Baltimore Orioles in 1960 and Cleveland Indians last year.

Tri-State Memorial, LaVale Maroons Win Pen-Mar Contests

Tri-State Memorial downed the Cresaptown Eagles, 9-7, and the LaVale Maroons turned back Barreille, 8-3, as the playoff semifinals got under way in the Pen-Mar Little League.

Dave Moreland's three-run homer in the bottom of the 5th was Tri-State's big blow.

The Eagles scored all their runs in the last two innings. Bobby Deremer was the winning pitcher and Lefty John Weaver the loser.

Larry Beachy collected two of Tri-State's seven hits while Jimmie Wilmoth in centerfield and Jimmie Walton at second base were the fielding stars.

Paul Skelley and Lynn Hardy shared four of the Eagles' eight safeties.

Jeff Williams tossed a 4-hitter and whiffed nine in the Maroons' triumph over Barreille. LaVale sewed it up in the third with a five-run rally, highlighted by John Pittman's bases-loaded triple. Gary Dyck accounted for two of the winning team's seven safeties.

Barreille's four hits were credited to Pat Logsdon, John Helmick, Mike Carter and Ken Blank. Helmick went all the way for Barreille and struck out six.

Jack Paulman at first base and Gary Dyck in left field turned in several nice plays while Kenny Blank sparked in centerfield for Barreille with a running catch of a long drive from the bat of Glenn Twigg.

The second games of the best-of-three series are scheduled for Thursday at 6 p.m., at Barreille and Cresaptown.

—Scores:
AT LAVALE: Barreille, 8-3; LaVale Maroons, 9-7.
AT CRESAPTOWN: Cresaptown Eagles, 9-7; Tri-State Memorial, 8-3.
John Weaver and Allen Faison, Bobby Deremer and Larry Beachy.

Gilmore Beats Comets, 13-7

A seven-run rally in the 7th and final inning gave Gilmore a 13-7 victory over the Cumberland Comets yesterday in a Twilight Baseball League game at Fort Hill Field.

Charley Winters went the distance for Gilmore and scattered seven hits while Abe, who was relieved by "Pooch" Lewis in the 7th, was tagged with the loss.

Williams collected three of Gilmore's 14 hits. J. Manges and "Pooch" Lewis collected two hits each for the Comets.

—Score:
Gilmore..... 13 0 0—13 13 7
Cumberland..... 7 0 0—7 7 7
Charles Winters and Jenkins, Abe, "Pooch" Lewis (7) and Goss.
Loser—Abe.

Jack Cloud Joins Navy Grid Staff

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Jack Cloud, former William and Mary full back, has joined Navy's varsity football staff as coach of offensive backs and defensive linebackers. Cloud's appointment as an assistant to head coach Wayne Hard in was announced Tuesday by Capt. William S. Busk, director of Athletics. He formerly was an assistant coach on the junior varsity and head coach of Navy's 150-pound football team.

Cloud played two seasons each with the Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins before entering the coaching profession.

Law Returns Home, Infant Son Ailing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pitcher Vernon Law of the Pittsburgh Pirates left the club Tuesday and returned to Pittsburgh where his 4-month-old son must undergo an operation.

The baby, named Verlon, is suffering from an obstruction of the intestines. He is at Children's Hospital.

UNDERWATER ARSENAL—Edward Friend shows the gang-type arsenal he found while exploring Cheat Lake Dump in scuba attire near Morgantown, W. Va. The weapons, in 20 feet of water, include 16 saved-off shotguns, four cut-down high power rifles, two .38-caliber pistols and a 45 clip for a Thompson submachine gun.

More Weapons Found In Lake

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—Skindivers recovered 48 more rifles, pistols and sawed-off shotguns from the depths of nearby Cheat Lake Monday — weapons believed to have been dumped there nearly four years ago by Cuban gunrunners.

Three divers, including two who made the original find by accident last Wednesday, brought up 39 .38 caliber pistols, five .38-40 rifles and four 12-gauge shotguns from under 50 feet of water and about a foot of mud.

They brought to 74 the number of weapons found by Darwin (Snooks) Johnson, the Rev. Stacy Groscup and Edward Friend, all accredited skindivers. Monday's haul also included two clips of ammunition for a Thompson submachinegun.

Authorities said the weapons may have been thrown into the lake about the time federal agents arrested Stuart Sutor, of Hialeah, Fla., when he landed a plane loaded with a cargo of 121 guns at Morgantown Airport Nov. 4, 1958.

Sutor and five other men were later convicted of attempted gun-running for the then Castro rebels in Cuba. The guns found in Sutor's plane were identified as having been stolen a month earlier from a National Guard armory in Canton, Ohio.

Officials here said the weapons found in the lake may have been intended for delivery to Sutor when he landed. Instead, they were disposed of when the owners found that Sutor had been arrested, they theorized.

Sheriff Clarence Johnson said the serial numbers of some of the weapons, all of which were heavily greased and had not deteriorated to a great extent, were being checked with the FBI in an effort to determine their origin.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
4♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Deuce of ♣

Cooperative signalling on the part of East and West in today's hand led to a quick upset of declarer's four heart contract.

The bidding was completely routine and, fortunately for his side, West got off to the only lead to give the defense a chance, namely the deuce of clubs. The ten was played from the dummy and East won the trick with the ace of clubs. He followed this up by cashing the king next.

East's play in clubs ostensibly violates the normal procedure which is to play the lower of touching honors when following to a trick. However, an exception is to be noted when a person holds a doubleton ace-king. By playing the ace first and then the king, it is expected that this somewhat abnormal action will alert partner to the fact that we have only a doubleton in the suit and will be in position to trump in on the third round.

West was quick to grasp East's message and, on the king of clubs, he very alertly followed with the jack. He could see that if East had only two clubs, then declarer was marked with three and, if West could regain the lead before trumps were drawn, he could give partner a ruff. It was essential to let East know how to give him the lead. If left to his own devices, East might be tempted to play back a diamond since this was the dummy's weakest suit.

By dropping the jack of clubs under the king, West was employing the suit preference signal to request a spade shift. Since the jack of clubs was an unnecessarily high card that could not be interpreted as a request for more clubs, it must be asking for a shift to the higher ranking of the two plain suits. If West wished to have a diamond led back, he would have followed to the second trick with the five of clubs.

In response to his partner's signal, East returned a spade, and West promptly gave him a club ruff to defeat declarer before he could get started.

Planner Urges Four Renewal Projects Here

Central Business Area Tops List

Agencies interested in planning work here last night took under consideration recommendations for four Urban Renewal projects, including the Central Business District.

The recommendations were made by Blair and Stein Associates, planning consultants for the City of Cumberland, at a meeting in City Hall attended by representatives of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, the Cumberland Renewal Agency and the Mayor and Council.

The projects, in order of urgency, include the Central Business District, an area in South Cumberland west of Maryland Avenue and north of Oldtown Road, the Centre Street area; and on the West Side an area bounded by Greene Street, the Potomac River and a railroad spur line.

Reports Presented

The projects were recommended in a "draft for review" Progress Report No. 11 of the firm in a Neighborhood Analysis and Urban Renewal Recommendations.

At the meeting held in the Council Chamber at City Hall, the planning firm also presented to the Planning Commission copies of the final draft of Progress Report No. 1, the Economic Base and Population Analysis.

Both reports will be needed when the City of Cumberland early this fall submits an application to the Housing and Home Finance Agency for certification of its Workable Program for community improvements.

The report on the Urban Renewal recommendations were taken under advisement by the agencies, which plan to hold separate meetings to discuss the proposals and then to hold a joint "pow-wow" session, tentatively set for September 5.

Will Hire Director

To get the Urban Renewal project on the road, once the Workable Program has been certified, the Urban Renewal Agency will need a director.

Present plans call for the director to begin his duties in January.

George T. Marcou, who is directing the city's planning study, recommended that an application be made to the Housing and Home Finance Agency for an advance of funds to prepare a General Neighborhood Renewal Plan for the Central Business District, since many problems will be involved in such a project.

Such a study, he said, would determine the effect on the heart of the business district of the Thruway project plan detailed improvements in the street system, form a basis of feasible priorities for improvement, place projects and improvements in proper relations to the railroad and street systems, examine the extent of business and residential relocations and determine the marketability of land acquired and cleared through specific projects, along with a detailed estimate of costs.

Go Into Session

Mrs. Lucille Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, who attended along with Mayor Earl D. Chaney and Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill, asked the Planning and Zoning Commission if it had taken action on a city request for a recommendation on a proposal for early adoption of an interim subdivision ordinance.

George O. Hollar, chairman, said the commission had no opportunity to discuss the proposal with Mr. Marcou.

He announced, as the general meeting broke up, that the commission was going into executive session to discuss the proposal.

Twice As Many Visit Lake

Attendance at Deep Creek Lake State Park last weekend more than doubled the previous weekend's turnout, the State Department of Forests and Parks reported yesterday.

Deep Creek had 14,571 visitors, compared to 6,014 the previous weekend.

Attendance at other Allegany and Garrett County areas, with previous weekend's figure in parentheses, included:

Swallow Falls 6,415 (4,937); Herrington Manor 4,666 (3,890); New Germany 6,186 (8,933); Big Run 2,125 (2,347); Potomac State Forest 110 (38); Dan's Mountain 720 (610); Green Ridge 2,452 (748).

Palapasco State Park again had the highest attendance of 23 areas in the state, accounting for 49,107 of the 130,121 total. The total was the highest this year.

Held In Assault On Trooper

James C. Lane, 34, hides behind Robert Booker, 28, right, as both were taken to magistrate's court in Hagerstown yesterday by State Troopers Ronald Norford and William Davis on charges of assault with intent to kill and destruction of property. They were companions of Lawrence S. Johns, 28, who wounded a state policeman and then killed himself as a manhunt closed in on him early Monday near Hancock. Lane and Booker were held in $16,000 bond on state and federal charges. (AP Photofax)

Pilot Operation Sponsored By Downtown Unit

Dr. Osborne Plans New Look For Area

Photographs of all buildings on Baltimore Street, between Mechanic and George streets, have been sent to Dr. Milton Osborne, head of the School of Architecture of Penn State University.

They were forwarded by the Downtown Cumberland Business Association of the Chamber of Commerce as part of a pilot operation for improvement of the business district.

Arthur F. Friedland, chairman, said the program is not designed as a costly renewal project, as Dr. Osborne attempts to bring out the best features of existing structures by the use of decoration, painting and painting, and to tie all buildings together while creating an artistic new look for the entire area.

Not all the stores in the area, Mr. Friedland said, have agreed to subscribe to the service, but the Chamber of Commerce feels the architect had to have photographs of all buildings in order to provide the unification of design needed.

During a meeting of the association this week, copies of agreements were passed out to property owners for the service. Dr. Osborne has agreed to provide architectural sketches of each building for $25, bringing the cost of the project, with before and after pictures, to $29 for each property.

A committee from the association plans to contact their neighbor stores in connection with the project.

When Dr. Osborne has completed his work, he will meet with the association to explain the program and answer questions.

Plan Decorations

The association said it hopes the entire area will put Dr. Osborne's recommendations into action and "give Baltimore Street the refreshing new and artistic look it so badly needs to maintain its status as the shopping center of the Tri-State area."

The association also agreed to order fall flowers for street decorations. They will be artificial chrysanthemums and will be placed on the containers used to hold present flowers.

Robert C. Petersen, manager, said the Chamber will make one more effort to secure voluntary action on the cleaning of sidewalks in the downtown area before urging enforcement of city ordinances on the subject.

Fire Damages Appliances

Fire last night damaged merchandise of the Cumberland Electric Company Inc. which was stored in a one-story frame garage at the rear of 134 Springdale Street.

Washers and driers were reported stored in the building. Fireman from South End station were called at 8:05 p.m. and since Central received a number of calls, the pumper from that station was sent to the scene.

However firemen from South End had the fire "knocked down" by the time others arrived. The cause of the fire was not determined last night, firemen said.

Retraining Program Will Expand

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes announced Tuesday that Maryland is ready to begin an intensified retraining program for unemployed persons as soon as funds are received from the federal government.

The governor had just signed an agreement with the U. S. Department of Labor that will enable the state to participate in the program.

Tawes said seven training programs will be offered throughout Maryland by the State Department of Education. They will be for positions as machine tool operator, automobile mechanic, architectural draftsman, mechanical draftsman, electronics technician and topographical draftsman.

Tawes said the State Department of Employment Security already has certified 290 persons for such training, principally in the Baltimore City area.

The program is separate from job retraining which has been conducted under the Area Redevelopment Administration in Cumberland, Hagerstown, and Oakland. The ARA retraining programs are only for economically distressed areas.

The new program will be much broader in scope and can be made available in any section of the state where there is a demand, Tawes said.

The governor had named a committee headed by Dr. Wilmer V. Bell, director of adult education for the Baltimore City Department of Education, to serve in an advisory capacity to the state departments of education and employment security and to his office in carrying out the training program.

Fair Accents Youth Today

Today's competition at the 45th annual Cumberland Fair centers on the youngsters.

Allegany County Agent Joseph M. Steger said last night that the County 4-H Club cattle will be judged starting at 9 a.m. today.

After the cattle are judged, the 4-H boys and girls will compete in the annual fitting and showing contest. This is divided into two divisions, the junior for 10 to 14-year-old youngsters and the senior for 4-H boys and girls through 21 years of age.

Scheduled for 10 a.m. today is the annual Future Farmers of America livestock judging contest for boys from Allegany and Garrett counties.

Robert G. Saville, vocational agriculture teacher at Flintstone High School, who is superintendent of the FFA department at the Fair, said that the boys will judge two classes of beef cattle and one class of hogs.

Brake Is Named New Principal At Ellerslie

Board Approves Other Transfers

William R. Brake, Oldtown Road, yesterday was named principal of Ellerslie Elementary School at the monthly meeting of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Mr. Brake was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Raymond Ralston, 35 Furnace Street, Lonaconing. Mr. Ralston has accepted an appointment as an investigator for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A graduate of the Old Pennsylvania Avenue High School, Mr. Brake attended Frostburg State Teachers College after World War II and has been on the faculty of Flintstone Elementary School for the past eight years. He was serving as assistant to the principal and remedial reading teacher at Flintstone.

Mr. Brake is married to the former Miss Helen Corrick.

His appointment was one of five transfers submitted to the Board of Education yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster.

Another names Miss Alma G. Logsdon, 26 Depot Street, Frostburg, new principal of LaVale Elementary School. Miss Logsdon has been serving as principal of Corriganville Elementary School. Previously she had been principal at West Side School in Cumberland.

Miss Nellie R. Powell, 33 Water Street, Frostburg, who has been principal at LaVale for a good many years, was named a remedial teacher in the Frostburg area.

The other two transfers approved yesterday by the school board were announced earlier by Mr. Webster. One designated Thomas M. Wagner, 907 Kentucky Avenue, former principal of Centre Street School, as new principal of John Humbird School. Mr. Wagner is filling the vacancy caused by the retirement of Miss Sara E. Wright as principal. The other named Harry R. Thomas, 70 Linden Street, Frostburg, former sixth grade teacher at Gephart School, as the new principal at Centre Street.

Boy, 8, Hit By Car

An eight-year-old boy was hospitalized yesterday after he was struck by an auto while riding a wagon on Brooklyn Place off North Mechanic Street.

James E. Stott, 615 North Mechanic Street, was admitted to Memorial Hospital with a possible head injury and a fractured right shoulder. His condition was listed as "fair" last night.

City Police Officer George Pfeiffer said the accident occurred about 5:10 p. m.

The driver of the car was Opie Lee Payton, RD 1, Ridgeley, who is employed by a local garage.

He was driving one of the garage's cars off a small lot when he hit the boy and the wagon. Payton took the boy to the hospital.

Lane, Booker Face Federal, State Charges

Also Wanted Here In Larceny Case

State and federal charges have been placed against two Pennsylvania men charged in the shooting and wounding of a State Trooper on Monday along U. S. Route 40 six miles east of Hancock.

James C. Lane, 34, and Robert Booker, 28, both of Harrisburg, are being held in Washington County jail, Hagerstown, under $16,000 bond each, awaiting grand jury action.

Bonds of $5,000 on charges of assault with intent to kill and $1,000 for malicious destruction of property were set yesterday by Magistrate William J. Dwyer in Hagerstown.

Two Federal Charges

The two men also are charged with federal offenses including two violations of the national and federal firearms acts, according to an officer of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division who obtained a warrant for their arrest from U. S. Commissioner Edwin Miller in Hagerstown.

Bond was set at $10,000 on the federal charges.

The two men are charged with the possession of a weapon silencer in violation of the National Firearms Act, and violation of the Federal Firearms Act which forbids a convicted felon from transporting guns and ammunition in interstate commerce.

Cpl. Robert K. Kirby spotted two men along with Lawrence S. Johns, 28, of Altoona, looting a roadside telephone booth coin box. When he attempted to stop them, Johns pulled a gun and shot the trooper twice.

Johns escaped, but Cpl. Kirby managed to keep the other two in custody and to radio for assistance. Later, as a searching party composed of authorities of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, closed in on Johns, he fired a bullet into his temple, killing himself.

Johns, according to police, was a fugitive on a charge of robbing a savings and loan association in Pittsburgh's Homewood section June 20, 1961.

Upon checking the luggage in the auto in which they were traveling, silencers for each of the men's hand guns were found. Federal officials entered the case upon the discovery of the silencers.

Kirby's Condition Good

Cpl. Kirby, recovering from surgery in Washington County Hospital, is in good condition with wounds in the thigh and right arm.

Allegany County authorities indicated last night they want the two men in connection with the pilfering of a coin box in a telephone booth at Mason's Snack Bar, Route 40 near Naves Crossroad.

County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya said yesterday he obtained warrants for the arrest of the two men who are charged locally with larceny and malicious destruction of property.

Fire Flares Up

South Cumberland Fire Company was called to the Kentucky-White Avenue section yesterday morning after a brush fire which smoldered for hours yesterday flared up again. Fire fighters were at the scene for about two hours, wetting down the area.

Four Compete In 4-H Honey

Four young apiarists entered honey in the 4-H competition at the Cumberland Fair much to the delight of older beekeepers of the area.

This is the second year for 4-H honey competition at Fairgo. Entries were submitted by David Ranker, 34 Pershing Drive; David Cope, Potomac Park; Eric Dean, LaVale, and Billy Fridinger, 756 Cleveland Avenue. Their exhibits are displayed under the grandstand at the Fair.

Second School Site Appraisal To Be Sought

Owners Reject $85,000 Offer

The Allegany County Board of Education voted yesterday to get a second appraiser to evaluate the property sought as the site for the proposed South Cumberland junior high school.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster informed the board that an offer of $85,000 for the 27½ acre tract was rejected by the property owners.

Originally, the appraiser hired by the school board came up with a value of $4,000 per acre for 15 acres of the tract needed for the proposed school. However, the property owners expressed a desire to sell the entire 27½ acres.

Taking the entire tract into consideration, Mr. Webster then made an offer of $85,000 but this was rejected by the owners. In turn the owners say they want a flat $4,000 per acre for the entire tract or about $110,000.

Before taking future action, the board now wants a second appraisal to determine whether his values are comparable to the first one. The board also authorized Superintendent Webster to have a survey made of the tract if and when he believes it is necessary.

Mr. Webster also reported that the architects now have the first preliminary plans ready on the proposed North Cumberland junior high school and will be here Friday to discuss them with him. Additions to both Parkside and Gephart elementary schools are virtually complete and are expected to be ready for use when classes resume next month.

Because of the crowded condition at Allegany High School, partitions have been installed to make five additional smaller classrooms there. Six additional teachers have been hired for Allegany this summer.

High schools of the county will have 37 new teachers this year while the elementary schools will have 20 new teachers and five or six others returning from maternity leaves.

Two ABL Men Are Injured In Explosion

One Hospitalized, Listed Satisfactory

Two employees of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory were injured, one of them hospitalized, yesterday as the result of an explosion in the solvent powder building on the reservation at Rocket Center, W. Va.

Donald L. Davis of 230 Mary Street, city, was admitted to Memorial Hospital with possible head injuries, according to attaches, who said X-rays were taken last night and his condition is "satisfactory."

Treated at the hospital was Thomas L. Steffick of Romney, W. Va. who had a possible nose injury. X-rays were taken and he was released from the hospital.

A spokesman for ABL said the incident occurred about 5:17 p.m. and the building involved was damaged extensively.

However, he said, general operation of the plant will not be affected by this incident. The cause of explosion was not determined yesterday, the official said.

City Will Mail 15,000 Tax Bills By September 2

The preparation of some 15,000 tax bills is being expedited by the City Finance Department.

Officials of the department Monday afternoon gave the green light to the printers to prepare the tax bills after the Mayor and Council adopted an ordinance setting the levy for the 1962-63 fiscal year at $1.57 for each $100 of assessable property.

The bills will be printed on canary yellow paper and will include some 13,000 statements for real estate taxes and about 2,100 bills for individual personal property, according to Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill.

Corporation tax bills go out throughout the year as assessments are certified by the State Tax Commissioner's office.

The statements will come from the printer with levy information on them. Finance Department staffers will print addresses and assessments from previously prepared plates and then tabulate the amount of tax due.

Mr. Hill said the bills will be placed in the mail not later than September 20.

The Mayor and Council is scheduled to hold a special meeting Thursday at 9 a.m. to adopt an appropriations ordinance. It will provide a schedule for appropriations to the various accounts and set departmental budgets.

At 11 a.m. a meeting has been set up with the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association and Local 812, Municipal Workers Union. Both have submitted formal requests for general wage increases.

The last general wage increase—five per cent—was granted on March 25, and was in addition to increases which became effective July 1 under the city's wage and pay classification plan.

Hetzer's Cattle Get Top Honors

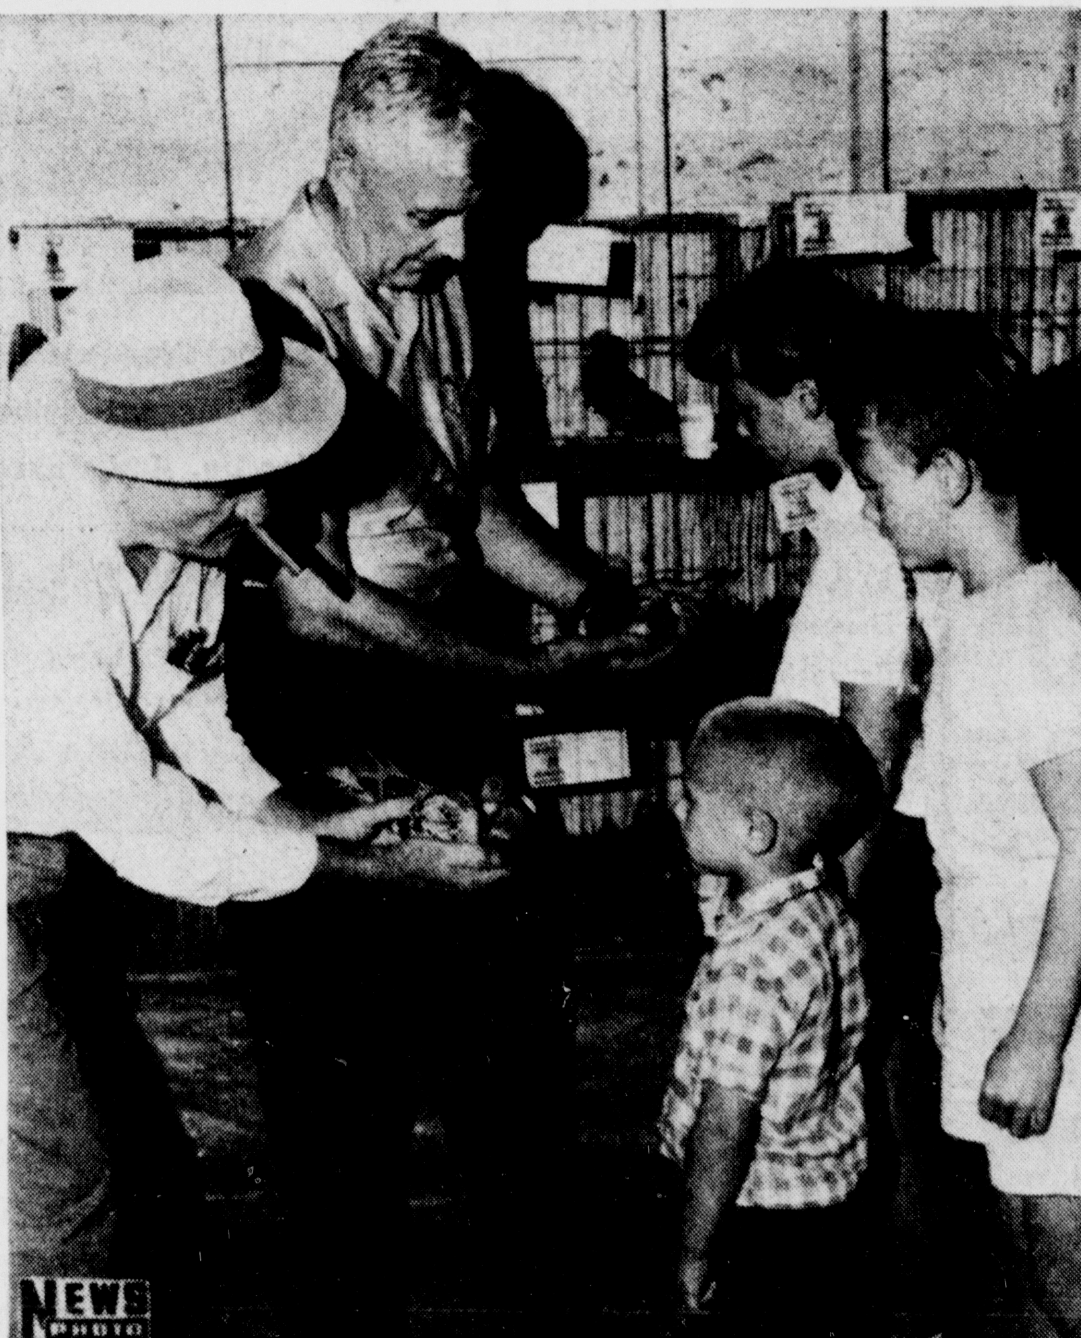

C. William Hetzer of Williamsport, a prominent Washington County businessman, entered some of his Hereford cattle in the Cumberland Fair for the first time this week and his entries were declared grand champion Hereford female and bull in judging yesterday.

Mr. Hetzer, who operates a contracting business in Washington County, also is a member of the State Board of Education and is assistant rabban of Ali Ghan Temple, A.A.O.M.S. He has 17 Herefords at Fairgo this week.

Two Allegany County exhibitors did well in dairy cattle competition. Glen Savage Dairy Inc., Mt. Savage, showed the grand champion Guernsey female, a two-year-old, Clarence O. Miller, of Midland showed the junior champion Holstein bull.

W. G. Merrells, whose farm is at Burlington, W. Va., exhibited the grand champion Angus female and bull in yesterday's judging. Carlton Ernst, RFD 1, Clear Spring, was the beef cattle judge. Sam Diehl, RFD 3, Bedford, Pa., showed the grand champion Ayrshire bull yesterday. The grand champion Ayrshire female was exhibited by W. I. Shank of RFD 3, Hagerstown. Doty Remsburg of Jefferson in Frederick County showed both the grand champion female and bull in Holstein breed. Richard Wills of McDonough School, Baltimore County, judged both Ayrshire and Holstein classes.

In Jersey competition, Braden King of Boonsboro claimed both the grand champion female and bull. Charles Shaw of Fair Play in Washington County was the Jersey judge. R. A. McCauley and Sons, Hagerstown, exhibited the grand champion Guernsey bull. Seth Schneble of Clear Spring was the Guernsey judge.

Champion Pigeons Shown

Two officers of the Allegany Racing Pigeon Club are shown holding a couple of champion birds while three interested youngsters look on. The men are Reatus Spiker, left, secretary of the club, and C. A. Smith, club president. The boys are both named Alan Wilson although they are not related, and the girl is Judy Wilson. The little boy lives on Mary Street while the other youngsters are from Chevy Chase.
